

The World Food Preservation Center LLC has partnered with ten major research universities on six continents to provide young students from developing countries a world-class education (M.S. and Ph.D.) in the postharvest preservation of food and conduct research on much needed new postharvest technologies. The ARO Volcani Center has just joined the World Food Preservation Center LLC as a “Sister Institution.”